	SECTION A-READING	22 Marks
Q. I	Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow:
	1. Many of us believe that ‘small’ means ‘insignificant’. We believe that small actions and choices do not have much impact on our lives. We think that it is only the big things, the big actions and the big decisions that really count. But when you look at the lives of all great people, you will see that they built their character through small decisions, small choices and small actions that they performed every day. They transformed their lives through a step-by-step or day-by-day approach. They nurtured and nourished their good habits and chipped away at their bad habits, one step at a time. It was their small day-to-day decisions that added up to make a tremendous difference in the long run. Indeed, in matters of personal growth and character building, there is no such thing as an overnight success. 2. Growth always occurs through a sequential series of stages. There is an organic process to growth. When we look at children growing up, we can see this process at work: the child first learns to crawl, then to stand and walk and finally to run. The same is true in the natural world. The soil must first be tilled and then the seed must be sowed. Next, it must be nurtured with enough water and sunlight and only then will it grow, bear fruit and finally ripen and be ready to eat. 3. Gandhi understood this organic process and used this universal law of nature to his benefit. Gandhi grew in small ways, in his day-to-day affairs. He did not wake up one day and find himself to be the ‘Mahatma’. In fact, there was nothing much in his early life that showed signs of greatness. But from his mid-twenties onwards, he deliberately and consistently attempted to change himself, reform himself and grow in some small way every day. Day-by-day, hour-by-hour, he risked failure, experimented and learnt from mistakes. In small and large situations alike, he took up rather than avoiding responsibility. 4. People have always marvelled at the effortless way in which Gandhi could accomplish the most difficult tasks. He displayed a great deal of self-mastery and discipline that was amazing. These things did not come easily to him. Years of practice and disciplined training went into making his successes possible. Very few saw his struggles, fears, doubts and anxieties or his inner efforts to overcome them. They saw the victory, but not the struggle. 5. This is a common factor in the lives of all great people: they exercised their freedoms and choices in small ways that made great impact on their lives and their environment. Each of their small decisions and actions, added up to have a profound impact in the long run. By understanding this principle, we can move forward with confidence in the direction of our dreams. Often when our 'ideal goal' looks too far from us, we become easily discouraged, disheartened and pessimistic. However, when we choose to grow in small ways, taking small steps one at a time, performing it becomes easy.

Q. II.	Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow:	10 marks
	1. With the enormous amount of information potentially available to travelers, the internet constitutes an important platform for information exchange between the consumer and industry suppliers (e.g., hotels, transportation sectors, attractions), intermediaries (e.g., travel agents), controllers (e.g., governments and administrative bodies), as well as many non-profit organizations such as destination marketing organizations. 2. Different technological interfaces, such as search engines, online travel booking sites and websites of destination marketing organizations facilitate the information exchange between online travelers and the so-called “online tourism domain”. 3. Particularly, it has been argued that understanding the nature of the online tourism domain, i.e. the composition of online tourism related information potentially available to travelers, provides an important stepping-stone for the development of successful marketing programs and better information systems in tourism. 4. The importance of social media is identified by Xiang & Gretzel (2010). Their analysis showed that social media constitute a substantial part of the search results, indicating that search engines linked the travelers directly to social media sites. Since more and more travelers seem to tap into this “collective intelligence” available on the web, this will challenge the established marketing practices of many tourism businesses and destinations. 5. The relation between social interaction, communication media and content can provide various supplementary advantages. It is more convenient and efficient way of spreading information compared to traditional media and thus, more and more companies are utilizing it as a marketing channel. Furthermore, through media visibility companies are able to create more approachable image and possibly bring awareness among new customers as well as retain existing consumer relationships. 6. One of the popular travel social media site Expedia Media Solutions partnered with ComScore, shed some insightful details of how travelers consume and share content prior to, during and after a trip.  Travellers are engaging across many touch points along their decision journey. Travel Buyer Reach

	7. It shows that the field of online content consumption is growing at a rapid pace. Another interesting point was that content is available and being assessed by consumers across more platforms and channels than ever before. Not surprisingly coming from an Expedia Solutions study, online travel agencies were found to be an important source across all platforms and throughout all stages of the booking process. 8. It is no wonder that destinations, airlines, hotels and most travel marketers are embracing social networks such as pinterest, photo/video applications such as Instagram and Vine, as part of their storytelling toolkit, reaching out to growing crowds of travelers.
	Based on your understanding of the passage, answer the questions given below.
i.	Who as per the information given in the passage, are the controllers in the field of Tourism?	1 Mark
