1.	Read the text carefully and answer the questions:	10 M
	1. Floods are not new to India and this sub-continent, but in recent years the problem has received much greater attention perhaps largely because it has led to much greater damage than in the past. Even though information on the impending occurrence of floods is now more accurate and certainly more timely, yet there is very little time or support infrastructure in place by which damage can be minimized. This is particularly true in the case of flash floods resulting from sudden and excessively heavy rain. 2. In the case of India, flood is very much a function of the seasonal nature of our rainfall. The monsoons spread over a short period during the year and often bring a concentrated volume of rain, which cannot be absorbed by the earth and finds outlet only in the form of streams that join up with our major river systems. But, flooding is not confined only to the main rivers of the country, often smaller tributaries and streams can cause heavy damage as well. Once these streams spill over their banks they could cause excessive harm, mainly because those living near the banks of these streams particularly in mountain areas do not have easy recourse to move away quickly. 3. One major factor that could lead to a higher severity of flooding in the future is the danger of climate change. While the evidence of the nature of impacts resulting from climate change on precipitation and flooding at the regional level is not entirely clear, it might be possible that the Indian subcontinent witnesses and suffers the effects of a significantly changed pattern of monsoons. A team of scientists have estimated that the monsoons could be shorter in duration, but far more intensive. In other words, much greater precipitation would take place in a much shorter period of time, thereby increasing the danger of floods. Climate change is the result of human actions through the increased concentration of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere, of which carbon dioxide is the most prominent one. 4. At the local level also human actions have heightened the danger of flood through the cutting of trees in the mountains as well as in the plains. In the case of India, the ecological damage through deforestation of the Himalayas has led to large- scale erosion of the mountain slopes and high levels of siltation. This leads to deposition of silt on the riverbeds in the plains and hence spillover of water whenever the volume of water in the river reaches a certain level. With siltation on the river beds, flooding occurs even at very shallow water levels.

Answer the following questions:
(i)	What harm has deforestation of the Himalayas caused? Ans: Erosion of mountain tops
(ii)	Increase in which human action has caused harm to the atmosphere? (a) usage of natural gas (b) cutting of plants in gardens (c) concentration of greenhouse gases (d) none of the above
(iii)	What has heightened the danger of floods at the local level? (a) natural causes (b) human activity (c) weather and climate (d) animal behaviour
(iv)	A set of scientists has estimated that the monsoons could be shorter but _____ Ans: More intensive.
(v)	What is a problem for people residing in new flooding streams on mountains? Ans: Lack of recourse to move away quickly.
(vi)	Flooding occurs even at the shallow level of river beds because of _____ Ans: Siltation.
(vii)	What can ample time and good infrastructure support do? (a) politicise the situation (b) minimise the damage (c) maximise the benefits (d) classify the losses
(viii)	_____ happen as a result of sudden and excessive rainfall. Ans: Flash Floods.
(ix)	The antonym of the word 'recent' in Para 1 is _____ (a) last (b) former (c) modern (d) fresh
(x)	Which is the most prominent greenhouse gas that has played a major role in climate change? Ans: Carbon dioxide.

2.	Read the text carefully and answer the questions:	10 M
	The trunk sat in the middle of the living room on newspapers her mother had spread out to keep the dust off her carpets. They tried to force the lid open but no matter how they pulled or pried, it stayed stubbornly shut. "There must be a way," Mom said. "There's no lock and no place to put a lock so the lock must be in the box itself." They wiped the box, getting every speck of dust and cobweb off it. Then they studied it from every direction. It wasn't a particularly beautiful box. It was longer than it was wide. It had a slightly rounded top. There were two ribs in the top. The sides were roughly carved with horses. "Interesting carvings," Gran said. "They show the integrity of the carver. There's no concern for the marketplace." "Folk art is in," Mom replied. "Hand-crafted. It should be worth quite a lot." Frances ran her fingers lightly over the horses. They were wonderful. No details, just the outline of horses running freely like unfettered spirits. The numbers, 1873, were not, as they'd first thought, part of the lid, but each number was fixed in place with a single brass bolt. The trunk had been painted blue and the numbers red. Now most of the paint had faded away. "We'll have another look at it in the morning," Mom finally said. "I need to put myself together." Frances woke up while it was still dark. She looked at her bedside clock. Four a.m. She lay in bed and listened to the waves on the beach. That was one of the best things about the cottage. She loved going to sleep to the sound of the waves and waking up to the sound of the waves. As she lay there, she could see the box, just as if it was sitting in front of her except that she was staring at the ceiling. She turned it around in her head, the way she could turn pictures of objects around on the computer. There was a mystery to it, and she loved mysteries. When she grew up, she thought she might be a detective or a coroner or an anthropologist someone who was always trying to find answers. "Why do you want to know the answers to everything?" her mother often chided her. "I don't know," Frances replied. "I just do. Questions need to be answered."
On the basis of your understanding of the passage above, answer the following questions:
(i)	Why did the mother believe that the box was worth a lot of money? Ans: Because hand-crafted folk art which is very popular was on the box.
(ii)	What do the 'interesting carvings' on the trunk indicate? Ans: The integrity of the carver.
(iii)	The figure of speech used in the expression 'horses running freely like unfretted spirits' is _____ Ans: Simile
(iv)	What is the similar characteristic found among a detective, a coroner and an anthropologist? Ans: Always try to find answers.
(v)	What had they thought first about the numbers 1873? (a) the year of manufacturing the box. (b) the year of transition to industrial capitalism (c) It was a part of the lid

	(d) It was the total number of brass bolts on the box
(vi)	The idiomatic expression opposite to the meaning of the word 'chide' is _____ (a) to give someone a dressing down (b) give a talking to someone (c) to tell off someone (d) to go into rapture over someone
(vii)	Pick out the odd one: Frances loved solving mysteries and so set her heart to be (a) a coroner (b) a detective (c) an undertaker (d) an anthropologist
(viii)	Pick out the incorrect option: Mother and daughter duo found the firmly locked trunk to be particularly enchanting because- (a) of the carved horses on the sides of the trunk (b) the horses had intricate detailing and could be worth a lot (c) the carvings reflected the integrity of the carver (d) the carvings were minimalistic and represented folk art
(ix)	Replace the underlined word in this statement with the correct synonym such that the meaning does not change: They tried to force the lid open but no matter how they pulled or pried, it stayed stubbornly shut. (a) inflexibly (b) determinedly (c) half-heartedly (d) firmly
(x)	As used in the passage, which of the following sentences has the closest alternative to the word 'ribs'? (a) I ribbed him a bit about fumbling such an easy play. (b) These soft pointed handles have a diagonal rib swirled like ice cream in a cone. (c) The movie is a rib of the "dramatic love story" that was so popular in the 1950s. (d) The horse was so emaciated; you could count its ribs.
