

INDIAN SCHOOL AL WADI AL KABIR

Class: X	Department: Social Science	Sub: Democratic Politics
Chapter-4 Question Bank:4	Topic: Political Parties	Year: 2023-24

1	What is a Political party? Which are the components of a Political party? Ans: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• A Political party is a group of people who come together to contest elections and hold power in a Government.</li><li>• They agree on some policies and programmes for the society with a view to promote the collective good.</li><li>• The leaders, the active members and the followers are the three elements/components of a Political party.</li></ul>
2	Why do Political parties involve Partisanship? Ans: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• A Person who is strongly committed to a party or a group is called as a Partisan.</li><li>• Partisanship is marked by a tendency to take a side and inability to take a balanced view on an issue.</li><li>• Parties reflect fundamental Political divisions in a society. Parties are a part of the society and they involve Partisanship.</li></ul>
3	“Political Parties perform various functions”. Which are they? Ans: The following are the various functions political parties perform in a democracy. <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Contest elections: In most democracies, elections are mainly among the candidates put forward by the Political Parties. In countries like India, top Party leaders choose candidates for contesting elections and in countries like USA, members and supporters of a party choose its candidates.</li><li>• Put forward Policies and Programmes: Parties put forward different policies and programmes and voters choose from them. People may have different opinions and Political parties group together a large number of similar opinions to provide a direction in which policies can be formulated by the Government.</li><li>• Play an important role in making laws: Political parties play a decisive role in making laws for a country. Formally, laws are debated and passed in the Legislature, since most of the members belong to a party, they go by the direction of the Party leadership, irrespective of their personal opinions.</li><li>• Form and run government: Parties recruit leaders, train them and then make them ministers to run the Government in the way they want.</li><li>• Provide access to government machinery and welfare schemes: Political parties provide people access to government machinery and welfare schemes implemented by</li></ul>

	governments. For an ordinary citizen, it is easy to approach a local party leader than a government officer. Parties have to be responsive to the people's needs, otherwise people can reject parties in the next election. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Play the role of Opposition: The party which loses election plays the role of opposition to the parties in power, by voicing different views and checks on the ruling party by constantly criticizing its policies.</li> <li>• Shape public opinion: Parties have lakhs of members spread all over the country and they raise relevant issues. Parties also conduct movements against the problems faced by the people.</li> </ul>
4	'Political parties are a necessary condition for a democracy.' Analyze the statement with examples. OR  "Modern Democracy cannot exist without Political Parties" Do you agree? Justify your answer Ans:  In a democratic set-up, Political parties are required because without Political parties: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Every candidate in the elections will be independent so no one will be able to make any promises to the people about any major policy changes.</li> <li>• The government may be formed, but it's utility will remain uncertain.</li> <li>• Elected representatives will only be accountable to their constituency, but no one will be responsible for running the country.</li> <li>• Lager societies need Representative democracy and political parties are needed to collect different views on various issues.</li> <li>• No one will be responsible for bringing various representatives together and there will be no mechanism to support the government, make policies or oppose them. So Political parties are a necessary condition of a democracy. The rise of Political parties is directly linked to the rise of Representative democracies.</li> </ul>
5	Describe the various Party systems existing in different countries. Ans: One-party or Single Party system  In some countries, only one party is allowed to control and run the Government. It is called One-party system. We cannot consider One-party system as a good option because this is not a democratic option. Any democratic system must allow at least two parties to compete in elections and provide a fair chance for the competing parties to come to power.  Example: Communist Party of China. Two-party or Bi- Party system  In some countries, power usually changes between two main parties. Several other parties may exist, contest elections and win a few seats in the national legislatures. But only the two main parties have a serious chance of winning majority of seats to form a government. Such a party system is called Two-party system. Example: USA and UK. Multi-party system  If several parties compete for power, and more than two parties have a reasonable chance of coming to power either on their own strength or in alliance with others, it is called a Multiparty system. In this system, the government is formed by various parties coming together in a coalition. When several parties in a multi-party system join hands for the purpose of contesting elections and winning power, it is called an Alliance or a Front. For example, in India there were

	three such major alliances in 2004 parliamentary elections– the National Democratic Alliance, the United Progressive Alliance and the Left Front. The Multiparty system often appears very messy and leads to political instability. At the same time, this system allows a variety of interests and opinions to enjoy political representation. Example: India. India adopted Multi-party system because of its social and geographical diversity. In such a diverse country two or even three parties cannot absorb all the differences.
6	Which Parties are called, ‘recognised political parties’ by the Election Commission? Ans: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Every Party in the country has to register with the Election Commission. While the Commission treats all parties equally, it offers some special facilities to large and established Parties.</li> <li>• These Parties are given a unique symbol and only the official candidates of that Party can use that election symbol. Parties that get this privilege and some other special facilities are ‘recognised’ by the Election Commission and such Parties are called, ‘recognised political parties’.</li> <li>• The Election Commission has laid down detailed criteria of the proportion of votes and seats that a party must get in order to be a ‘recognised national party’ and a ‘recognized state party’.</li> </ul>
7	How can we differentiate a National Party and a State Party? Ans: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Election Commission has laid down detailed criteria of the proportion of votes and seats that a party must get in order to be a Recognised party.</li> <li>• A party that secures at least six per cent of the total votes in an election to the Legislative Assembly of a State and wins at least two seats is recognised as a State party. Example: Biju Janata Dal, Sikkim Democratic Front.</li> <li>• A party that secures at least six per cent of the total votes in Lok Sabha elections or Assembly elections in four States and wins at least four seats in the Lok Sabha is recognised as a National party. Example: Bharatiya Janata Party, Indian National Congress.</li> </ul>
8	What made the Parliament of India politically more and more diverse? OR How do State or Regional Political parties contribute in strengthening federalism and democracy in India? Ans: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Over the last three decades, the number and strength of the State Parties has expanded. This made the Parliament of India politically more and more diverse.</li> <li>• No single National party is able to secure on its own a majority in the Lok Sabha, until 2014. As a result, the National parties are compelled to form alliances with State parties.</li> <li>• Since 1996, nearly every one of the State parties has got an opportunity to be a part of one or the other National level Coalition government. This has contributed to the strengthening of federalism and democracy in our country.</li> </ul>
9	What are the challenges faced by the Political Parties in India? Ans:

- Lack of internal democracy: All over the world there is a tendency in Political parties towards the concentration of power in one or few leaders at the top. Parties do not keep membership registers, do not hold organizational meetings, and do not conduct internal elections regularly. Ordinary members of the party do not get sufficient information on what happens inside the party. As a result, the leaders assume greater power and those who disagree with the leadership find it difficult to continue in the party. More than loyalty to party principles and policies, personal loyalty to the leader becomes more important.
- Dynastic succession: Since most Political parties do not practice open and transparent procedures for their functioning, the Party leaders are in a position of unfair advantage to favour people close to them or even their family members. In many Parties, the top positions are always controlled by members of one family. This is unfair to other members of that party. This is also bad for democracy, since people who do not have adequate experience or popular support come to occupy positions of power.
- Money and muscle power: Since Parties are focused only on winning elections, they tend to use short-cuts to win elections. They tend to nominate those candidates who have or can raise lots of money. Rich people and companies who give funds to the Parties tend to have influence on the policies and decisions of the Party. In some cases, Parties support criminals who can win elections.
- Absence of a meaningful choice: In recent years there has been a decline in the ideological differences among Parties in most parts of the world, so they do not provide a meaningful choice to voters. Difference between the Labour Party and Conservative Party in Britain is very little. In India too, the differences among all the major parties on the economic policies have reduced. Those who want really different policies have no option available to them. Also, people cannot even elect different leaders because the same set of leaders keep shifting from one party to another.

10 Describe in brief the recent efforts that have been made in India to reform Political parties and its leaders.

Ans:

Recent efforts to reform political parties and its leaders are as given below:

- Anti-defection law: The anti-defection law was passed to prevent elected MLAs and MPs from changing their parties. It was seen that many MLAs and MPs were changing their parties for personal gains. Now, according to the law, if any MLA or MP changes his/her party, his/her seat in the legislature will be lost. Also, MLAs and MPs have to accept whatever the Party leaders decide.
- Filing of an Affidavit: The Supreme Court has made it mandatory for every candidate who contests an election to file an Affidavit giving details of his property and criminal cases pending against him. This has been done to reduce the influence of money and criminals.
- Mandatory organizational meeting and filing of ITR: The Election Commission has made it necessary for Political parties to hold their organizational elections and file their Income Tax Returns.

Other important suggestions to reform Political Parties are:

- A law should be made to regulate the internal affairs of Political parties including the

	maintenance of a register of its members, following its own Constitution, having an independent authority, act as a judge in case of party disputes and hold open elections to the highest posts. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• It should be made mandatory for Political parties to give a minimum of one-third of the party tickets to women candidates.</li> <li>• There should be state funding of elections. The government should give parties money to support their election expenses in cash or in kind (petrol, paper, telephone, etc.) on the basis of the votes secured by the party in the last election.</li> <li>• People can pressurize political parties through petitions, publicity, and protests. Ordinary citizens, pressure groups, and movements along with media can play an important role in forcing the parties to keep a check on its reforms.</li> <li>• Public participation is essential in reforming the level of politics. Citizens, by directly joining political parties can contribute towards the betterment of the nature of politics.</li> </ul>
11	'No party system is ideal for all countries in all the situations.' Justify the Statement with arguments. Ans: No party system is ideal for all countries and all situations. This statement can be justified through the following arguments <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A One-party system cannot be considered a good option because the voters do not have any choice and it is not a democratic option.</li> <li>• A Two-party system cannot be considered ideal for a country because in this system, power usually shifts from one Party to the other. Several other Parties with better programmes and policies may exist, contest elections and win a few seats, but only two parties have serious chance of forming the Government.</li> <li>• A Multiparty system also cannot be considered a good option because it often appears messy and leads to political instability. In this system the government is formed by various parties and ideologies coming together which may further raise issues and conflicts.</li> </ul>
12	Examine the role of Opposition parties in a Democracy. Ans: Positive role Opposition parties ensure political party in power does not misuse or abuse its power. They expose the weaknesses of the ruling party. They also keep a close watch on the bills and expenditure of the government. Negative role Opposition parties target the government and aim at discrediting the government for all the ills and troubles the people face. It also interrupts the proceedings of the Parliament and thereby curtails the progress of the country.