'ALTHOUGH' OR 'THOUGH'.

We use the conjunction 'although' or 'though' when something has happened unexpectedly or surprisingly or when we want to show the contrast in the information given.

Example 1 – I love to sing on stage, although I am a bad performer.

Example 2 – Though my house is small, it is very spacious.

Example 3 – Although the beach was beautiful, we did not have fun.

We can use 'although' or 'though' in place of the conjunction 'but'. The conjunction 'although' / 'though' can be used at the beginning or in the middle of a sentence.

'FOR'.

We use the conjunction 'for' to give reasons as to why something has taken place.

Example 1 – We left early, for we had finished the project.

Example 2 – She needs to buy a gift for her cousin's birthday.

'YET'.

We use the conjunction 'yet' to express opposite ideas. The conjunction 'yet' means 'but' or 'nevertheless'.

Example 1 – My father was angry, yet he helped me study.

Example 2 – I woke up early, yet I was late to the meeting.

'UNLESS'.

We use the conjunction 'unless' to show that a particular event can take place only if the conditions are met.

Example 1 - You won't get good grades unless you work hard.

Example 2 – We cannot go for an Aerobics class unless we form a line.

'SINCE'.

The conjunction 'since' is used to show a certain event or action that took place in the past and continues in the present. We also use 'since' to state a reason.

Example 1 – We have been married since 2001.

Example 2 – Jack is disheartened ever since he lost the match.
